

CDNA

OUTSTANDING WITH CDNA

What we still need from CDNA

Prepared by Beto & Cadu / Dev em Dobro. Following the daily of 17 Sep 2026. Everything from that call is built and live on the preview; this is what remains on your side.

Everything from the daily of 17 September is built and live on the preview. This note is the complete list of what is outstanding on your side, in one place rather than arriving one at a time.

Nothing here blocks launch. Every slot listed is already working — it shows either a marked placeholder or the client's own wording from your mockups. The pages are complete; they are waiting on words and files that only you can supply.

The fastest wins sit in section 1: sixty-eight short lines of copy that would finish the ten service pages. After that, the Europe / UK & Europe decision in section 5 — one answer settles eighteen of the twenty-three faculty entries.

What went live on the preview today

About

- Nineteen years, five regions, 10,000+ leaders — the three figures from the daily.
- Where we work: GCC & Middle East is now Middle East & North Africa.
- The world map has been rebuilt in the style you sent: one flat landmass tone, red pins, no painted countries.
- The Keeping Leadership Real photograph is now the retouched six-person version — but the quality of that image is already poor. It is a generated retouch rather than a camera file: at full size the hands on the counter show the generator's artefacts, and the About page uses a crop of it, which magnifies them. It holds up at the size the page serves it, and it is the right people. It is not a photograph we would leave on the site permanently. A real photograph of the six would replace it on both Team and About.

Team

- Supported by a team of senior program managers — a new block under Leadership, with Maliha Bathool and Carol Medcalf.

- Global faculty now lists all 23 facilitators from Facilitators for website.docx, each with their portrait and region. The five region tiles are gone.
- The faculty is now described as 60+ senior practitioners, on both the Team and About pages.
- Every photograph on the page is now black and white — the six leadership portraits and all twenty-five new faculty and programme manager portraits.
- The One team photograph has been replaced with the retouched version, without the chairs.

Services

- All ten cards on the index now use your images from the Drive.
- Each service page hero now carries its own image rather than one shared photograph.
- Impact and How we help have been rebuilt to your ExCo template: headline left, rule, body right.
- Partners is restacked with the five logos from the Drive on a dark panel.

Clients & Impact

- The logo wall is now the animated bar from the homepage.
- Industries we work in and the Real outcomes row have been removed.
- Case studies is now one case per row — client name, the challenge, the full set of impact figures, and a button through to the story.

Every page except the homepage now has a shorter first screen, so the section below is visible without scrolling.

1. Service page copy — 68 short lines

This is the largest single gap, and the cheapest to close. All of it is short copy.

a) Block headlines — 18 lines

Your ExCo template gives each of the first two blocks a headline on the left, beside the paragraph. The headline promises; the paragraph explains. We have the paragraphs — they come from the Services document. The headlines do not exist anywhere in what you have sent, except for Top 150, which your template writes out in full:

Block	Headline (left)	Body (right) — we already have this
Impact	A stronger, more connected senior leadership community.	A senior leadership community with greater strategic alignment, decision quality and execution speed...
How we help	From ambition to enterprise leadership in practice.	We work with the ExCo and top 100 to 150 leaders to build the Inner Game and Outer Game...

Nine services still need both. Each currently reads "Headline to be confirmed."

Needed for: Culture Transformation · Talent Development · Manager Development · Women in Leadership · High Performing Teams · HRLT Effectiveness · Judgement in AI · Executive Coaching · Family Business Consulting.

Two lines each. Use the Top 150 pair above as the tone.

b) Pillar descriptions — 50 lines

Your template puts a one-line description under each of the five pillars — "Shared learning that builds perspective and collective mindset" under Immersive experiences, and so on.

We have the pillar names for all ten services. We have none of the descriptions, including for Top 150. Across the ten services there are 50 pillars.

The pillars currently render as icon and name only. They look finished; they are simply carrying less than your template intends.

One line each, under fifteen words.

2. Service evidence

Five of the ten services have an evidence band. Five have no client story at all, so the band does not render — that is the correct behaviour, not a fault.

a) Four client quotes

Your outline is explicit: "Nine of the ten have no publishable testimonial. Four have one identified but not chosen: adidas, GSK Mexico, Heineken and Vodafone. Only Executive Coaching has text that can ship."

Those four now show a placeholder in your own mockup's wording — "A quote from [client] to be confirmed." We have deliberately not written anything that sounds real: a plausible invented sentence is the one thing a reviewer approves without noticing.

b) Evidence photographs — 5 images

Each evidence band has a portrait slot beside the figures. All five currently show a grey plate marked PLACEHOLDER, except Top 150, which uses a photograph of a HEINEKEN sign from our side — also provisional.

Portrait or square, at least 1000px on the short edge.

3. Partners

a) The section text

The copy is the previous version and names only two of the five partners — Harvard Business Impact and Imperial College London. The panel now shows five.

Needed: a paragraph that covers CLO100, YPO and Explore Performance as well.

b) The sixth logo

You mentioned six; the Drive folder has five. Which one is missing?

c) Reversed logo files

The logos sit on a dark panel, because two of them (CLO100 and YPO) only exist as white artwork. Three of the five did not work on dark and we adapted them ourselves:

- Harvard Business Impact arrived with no transparency – a white rectangle with a black crest. We removed the white and reversed the crest to white.
- Explore Performance is dark grey artwork. We took it to solid white, which loses the blue in the symbol.
- Imperial College had a white box behind the crest. We removed only the box; the crest is still in colour.

All three read correctly. But these are derived by us from your files, and a reversed version of a third party's mark normally comes from its owner.

Worth requesting the official white / reversed files from each of the three.

4. One label to keep an eye on

The CMS was updated today and the homepage and Our Impact now read 19 years, 5 and 60+, matching the About page. Thank you – that closed the gap.

One knock-on, which we have already fixed: the figure comes from the CMS but its label is site copy, and it still read "Countries of global delivery". With the value at 5, both pages briefly published "5 Countries of global delivery". It now reads Regions of global delivery.

The one remaining inconsistency is /approach, which still carries 26 countries, 95% and ten years – different figures for the same things, from the approval list of 06 August that never came back. Worth settling whether the site counts countries or regions, and using one of the two everywhere.

5. Team page details

a) "Tony" has no surname

The facilitator table gives only "Tony", with the bio link CDNA Profile - Australia_Tony.pptx. Published as written rather than guessed – but a single first name among twenty-two full names reads like an unfinished field.

b) The two programme managers have no job title

You sent the portraits and the heading, nothing else. The line under each name is deliberately empty; inventing "Senior Programme Manager" would mean writing a real person's job title by inference.

c) Regions

Each facilitator now carries their region under their name — that is what replaced the five region tiles. Three things in the table need you:

- Tom Cross's region cell contains a question, not a region: "UKEE is there a reason we are not using EUR for Europe? UKEE is not commonly used here?" Read as UKEE, since that is the code CDNA uses elsewhere — Mike Jackson is Head of UKEE.
- Bret Freeman's cell is unresolved in the table itself: "UK (though was listed as ME?)". Used UK & Europe, which is the statement; the question mark is yours.
- "Europe" and "UK & Europe" now sit side by side. Sixteen people are filed under EUR and two under UKEE / UK — which is exactly the inconsistency the comment in Tom Cross's cell raises. One decision settles eighteen of the twenty-three entries.
- Nobody is listed in India, and only two in the Middle East. India had its own tile in the old layout and now does not appear at all, because no facilitator in the table is filed there.

d) Three portraits are too small

Person	Size supplied	Needed
Sandro da Silva	190 × 190 px	any original, 800 px or more on the short edge
Amy Scialdone	239 × 201 px	same
Lisa Kaplin	199 × 196 px	same

The rest range up to 2048 px. These three have not been enlarged — enlarging bakes the blur permanently into the file. On a normal screen they pass; on a high-resolution laptop they visibly soften next to their neighbours.

e) Two are event photographs rather than portraits

Sunanda Banerjee stands in front of a LeadHERs event banner; Wouter van den Berg is speaking on stage with a Harvard Business Review backdrop. Both have been cropped by hand to head-and-shoulders and both work. They simply read as snapshots among studio portraits. Nice-to-have, not a blocker.

f) One wording question

The heading is published exactly as written: "Supported by a team of senior program managers." The rest of the site is British English — programmes delivered, Manager Development. Keep program, or change it to programme?

6. Client logo files

The logos in the Case studies list and the client wall are low resolution, and carry very different amounts of built-in transparent padding — which is why some appear much smaller than others at the same setting:

Logo	File	Actual mark	Share of the height used
Morgan Stanley	165 × 49	137 × 21	43%
MAADEN	180 × 60	149 × 32	53%
Dyson	132 × 68	104 × 40	59%
Vodafone	123 × 97	95 × 69	71%

We can normalise these ourselves — trim the transparency and re-pad them evenly — but the same files are used by the client wall, the animated bar and the case library, so it changes logo sizing everywhere at once. Say the word and we will. Higher-resolution originals would be better still.
