Corporate DNA — Status Update

Prepared by Dev em Dobro. 15 September 2026. Scope: the public website.

In response to the daily of 14 September and to the Drive folder Maliha shared on 15 September. Prepared by: Dev em Dobro. Date: 2026-09-15. Scope: the public website.

Numbers in brackets are the items from the 14-09 call, so you can map each line back to what you asked for.

Label	Meaning
CDNA	Waiting on you — a file, a line of copy, or a confirmation.

Part A — Delivered

Everything below is on the review site now.

Team

- [19] Global presence block removed. Offices live in the footer only.
- [16] Each quote moved from under the name to beside the portrait, in the pink card with the red quote marks, exactly as your mockup shows. Still three per row — the "one person per line" idea was Guli's suggestion in the call, and your mockup and the Word document both say three across.
- The "+" button opens the person's full profile in a pop-up, which is what the Word document asks for ("short bio on click or hover"). The bios were already in the content system.
- Nitin Goil's portrait is in. All six leadership cards now have a photo.
- The DNA Experience now has four strands, not three. The Word document lists four — One DNA TEAM, The DNA Experience, Trusted Relationships, Inclusion & Diversity — and the first one was missing.

- The page now closes with a "Let's talk" band ("Ready to make leadership real?"), which your mockup has and the page did not.
- The team photograph on the stairs is in place, and the hero has its own photograph instead of the shared default. (maliha, please confirm if this is the right image)
- The leadership grid was re-measured against the leadership.PNG you sent — spacing, type sizes and column proportions now follow it, and the grid shows three per row from 1280px, so it reads as two rows of three on a normal laptop.

About

- [2] The five values are now five boxes with the text underneath, instead of five horizontal rows.
- [3] The map is smaller with the body text beside it — text left, map right, "Where we work" still on top.
- [4] The scrolling address band from the original landing page is back, without the map. The office details still come from your document, not from the old site data.
- [5] Your photographs are in.

Services

- [8] + [9] The hero image for the listing page was changed; the page now uses the same skyline backdrop as the About page. For the intern pages we need to choose the images to go on the hero.
- [10] + [12] The grid is four across, with the last two sharing the bottom row, each card with an image, a number and "Learn more". Nine of the ten cards have a photograph.
- [15] Harvard Business Impact and Imperial College marks are on the partners band.
- On the service pages: "The Outcome" is now Impact, "How Corporate DNA Helps" is now How we help, the invitation moved up to sit before the evidence, and a Related services row closes the page.

Home

- [29] Team faces removed from the top. The rest of that section stays, as you said.
- [32] Addresses removed.
- [33] The duplicated map removed.
- [34] Awards & Mentions is now a banner — title and the five marks in one band, with no "finalist" or "semi-finalist" line.

Across the site

- [1] The real company logo replaced the placeholder, in the header and the footer.

Part B — What we still need from you — CDNA

1. Four client quotes. The copy sheet marks these as "identified but not chosen": adidas, GSK Mexico, Heineken and Vodafone. Only Executive Coaching has a publishable quote today, so the testimonial block is empty on nine of the ten service pages. This is the smallest job on this list and the one that changes those pages the most.
 2. The short headline for each service block. Your drill-down template shows a headline above the body text in Impact and How we help — for ExCo, "A stronger, more connected senior leadership community." The body text we have; the headline exists only for ExCo, inside the image. That is two lines per service, twenty in total.
 3. The five-step strip under "How we help" in your template (Immersive experiences · Executive coaching · Real business challenges · Peer learning · Mastery labs). It exists only for ExCo; the other nine would need their own.
 4. The "Americas" image, which you marked "in progress" — and a decision on whether the India image changes too.
 5. The six short bios for the Team page, answering "what do you believe about leadership that most people in this industry get wrong?" This is Block 3 in the Team document and it is still marked HOLD. We searched all five documents and the spreadsheet in the folder; it is not there.

Part D — Not started, and why

- The 5H page. Waiting on Rhea's approval. It is a new page rather than an adjustment, so it is the most expensive thing to build ahead of a yes.
- The Clients & Impact top-level page. Two designs arrived; you noted "content to follow". Can we start development based on the layouts and content in the "5. clients and impact" Drive folder?
- The case study template. The design arrived. We have 3 of the 23 case studies, and you were clear that two or three is not enough to launch.
- The service drill-down, beyond the changes in Part A, is waiting on items B2 and B3.

One thing your template answered without anyone asking: "related case studies" and "client voice", which you asked us to remove in the call, are blocks 04 and 05 of your case study template. Nothing to remove from the current site — we will simply leave them out when that template is built.
