A FIVE-MONTH VIRTUAL LEADERSHIP EXPERIENCE

Her Leadership DNA

Make Your Influence Count.
For Senior Women Leaders.

You bring experience, judgement and a record of delivery. The next challenge may be winning support across competing interests, confronting a pattern that keeps costing the business, or making your contribution visible as your role changes.

Work on the Challenges That Matter.

Programme at a Glance · What You'll Explore · Schedule · Faculty · Investment and Application

01 THE EXPERIENCE

A small cohort of senior women works through real leadership challenges with experienced facilitators and peers. Explore how your strengths, values and assumptions shape your impact, practise different approaches and apply what you learn where it matters most.

02 WHAT YOU LEAVE WITH

A personal leadership blueprint, a clearer understanding of the relationships that support your influence and practical strategies for the conversations and decisions ahead – so you lead with greater intention and shape the contribution you want to make next.

01 PARTICIPANT AND SPONSOR VALUE

Who This Programme Is For

For Experienced Women Whose Influence Extends Across Teams, Functions or Markets

Her Leadership DNA is designed for experienced senior women leaders making consequential decisions and leading through complexity. It is relevant when you are broadening your remit, navigating organisational change, strengthening your voice in senior forums or considering your next chapter.

Situations You Might Bring

01 A cross-functional priority has support in principle, but decisions and resources keep stalling.

02 A capable colleague repeatedly misses commitments, and previous conversations have changed little.

03 Your work is valued, but the people shaping your next opportunity have limited visibility of your contribution.

04 You are carrying decisions and responsibilities that others need to own.

What You Will Develop – And How You Can Use It

01

Personal Leadership Blueprint

Articulate your distinctive contribution and use your strengths and values to guide how you lead.

02

Influence and Ally Map

Identify and connect with who shapes a decision, align with what matters to them and engage in the conversations needed to move it forward.

03

Accountability Conversation Plan

Address recurring gaps with clear standards, clarify expectations and agree ownership and follow-through.

04

Focused 90-Day Agenda

Choose the changes you want to make, identify the support you need and recognise progress over the following three months.

Making the Case for Sponsorship

Connect your development to a priority that matters to you and your organisation. With your line manager or sponsor, identify what you want to strengthen – for example, building alignment across functions, addressing a recurring delivery gap or challenge, or developing greater ownership in others. The facilitated line-manager conversation and your personal action plan provide opportunities to discuss what you are applying, the support you need and the progress you are making.

The programme creates opportunities to turn insight into practical changes in how you lead. Progress is shaped by your participation, workplace application and the support available in your context.

The programme develops leadership capability. Individual and organisational outcomes depend on context, participation and workplace application.

02 THE LEARNING EXPERIENCE

How the Programme Works

Insight, Practice, Group Support and Review Across Five Months

Live sessions combine reflection, facilitated dialogue and practice on situations participants recognise. Between sessions, you put your learning into practice – perhaps through a stakeholder conversation, a different response under pressure or a clearer agreement about ownership. You then reflect and refine your approach. Smaller peer pods offer further opportunities to work through challenges, learn from one another and follow through on your commitments.

The Whole Leader: CDNA's 5H Framework

The 5H Framework connects the inner and outer work of leadership: how you think, what matters to you and how this translates into action.

HEAD
Explores your thinking and assumptions.

HEART
Connects your values, emotions and relationships.

HUNCH
Draws on intuition and pattern recognition.

HANDS
Turns discernment into action.

HABITS
Help you repeat and refine the behaviour you want to sustain.

An Intimate Cohort. A Consequential Experience.

10–24

senior women in the inaugural cohort

Bring substantial experience and different perspectives to the table. An intimate setting gives you room to speak candidly, examine decisions you cannot easily discuss at work and receive thoughtful challenge from facilitators and peers who take your ambitions seriously.

Apply for the inaugural cohort

Alongside the 36 hours of live participation, allow time to complete your CliftonStrengths assessment, prepare for sessions and reflect on what you are learning. Much of the practical application takes place through your existing work and leadership conversations. Your facilitator will discuss preparation and attendance expectations with you before you enrol. The live-time total includes the individual strengths debrief and line-manager conversation; their appointments are arranged separately. Participation includes listening actively, contributing candidly and respecting confidentiality.

03 THE FOUNDATION

Immersion and Recalibration

Build a Clear Understanding of How You Lead Before Extending Your Range

IMMERSION 1

Leadership Identity and Values

Examine the experiences and values that shape your leadership. Use your leadership story and Best Self evidence to identify when you make your strongest contribution, what others rely on you for and what you want to carry forward.

PRACTICE
Describe a consequential leadership moment and explore the assumptions behind your response.

OUTPUT
The first version of your leadership blueprint, grounded in your experience.

IMMERSION 2

Strengths and Impact

Use Gallup CliftonStrengths to understand the talents you draw on naturally. Explore how they combine, how colleagues may experience them and how an overused strength can create friction under pressure. A separate 60-minute debrief helps you connect your profile to your role.

PRACTICE
Revisit a difficult interaction through a strengths lens.

OUTPUT
Specific choices about how to use your strengths more deliberately with stakeholders and colleagues.

IMMERSION 3

Leadership Under Pressure

Explore how assumptions, bias and habitual responses shape your interpretation of people and events. Practise listening with curiosity and responding with greater choice when stakes are high. Consider how your internal response affects the climate others experience.

PRACTICE
Separate observation from interpretation in a current situation.

OUTPUT
A personal pattern to notice and a different response to test at work.

RECALIBRATION

From Insight to Application

Bring your foundation work together. Test your emerging leadership blueprint with peers, identify the situations where you want to extend your range and set a clear intention for the mastery modules.

Three immersion sessions and one recalibration session, each lasting three hours. CliftonStrengths is the strengths assessment used in this programme. A 360-degree assessment is not part of the design.

04 MASTERY MODULES

Allies and Leadership Tensions

Expand the Relationships and Judgement That Support Your Impact

MASTERY 1

Activating Allies

Strong performance does not automatically create advocacy. Examine the people who can help your work travel further, the contribution you can make to them and the difference between a helpful contact and an active ally.

- Map the stakeholders and relationships around a current opportunity or challenge.
- Identify where you need perspective, access, advocacy or constructive challenge.
- Prepare a specific ask that makes it easy for someone to help, and consider what you can offer in return.

IN PRACTICE

A new enterprise role is being shaped outside your function. Decide who needs to understand your contribution and how to begin that conversation.

TAKEAWAY

An ally map and a purposeful relationship action to test before the next session.

MASTERY 2

Managing Polarities

Senior leadership often requires attention to two legitimate needs at once. Explore tensions such as candour and care, present delivery and future investment, or local autonomy and enterprise consistency.

- Distinguish a problem that can be solved from a tension that needs continuing management.
- Examine the benefits of each side and the costs of relying too heavily on either.
- Identify warning signs and actions that help you sustain both needs over time.

IN PRACTICE

Your team needs room to experiment while a major customer requires reliable delivery. Explore how to protect both needs in the operating rhythm.

TAKEAWAY

A polarity map, early warning signs and actions for a tension in your current role.

MASTERY 3

Crucial Confrontations and Accountability

Experienced leaders often know how to have a difficult conversation. The harder task can be addressing a recurring gap after earlier conversations have failed to change it. This module focuses on the standard, the pattern and the conditions needed for follow-through.

- Describe the expected commitment, what happened and the effect on the work or relationship.
- Explore whether the gap reflects clarity, capability, capacity, motivation or competing priorities.
- Address a repeated pattern directly while keeping candour and care in view.
- Agree the action, owner, support and review point.

IN PRACTICE

A peer commits resources in meetings but repeatedly withdraws them afterwards. Prepare to address the pattern, understand what is driving it and agree a reliable way forward.

TAKEAWAY

A conversation plan you can use, including the standard, questions to explore causes and agreed follow-through.

Each mastery module is a three-hour live session. Peer pods create space to review the application of these ideas between modules.

05 MASTERY MODULES

Energy and Strategic Influence

Protect Your Capacity and Choose How to Move Important Decisions

MASTERY 4

Strategic Influence

Explore how power, interests and relationships shape a decision. Clarify what you need to achieve, read the room and choose an approach that fits the situation. Practise moving among telling, convincing, bridging and inspiring with purpose.

- Map formal decision-makers and the people who influence them.
- Surface competing interests and identify where a coalition could form.
- Prepare the substance of your ask and how you want to deliver it.

IN PRACTICE

Your proposal has strong evidence, but a key leader remains unconvinced. Explore what they are protecting and whether evidence, common ground or a different conversation could move the decision.

TAKEAWAY

An influence map and a plan for a consequential stakeholder conversation.

MASTERY 5

Energy and Leadership Capacity

Examine how your attention, habits and expectations affect the work you can sustain. Look beyond a crowded calendar to the responsibilities you continue to hold, the decisions that return to you and the conversations needed to change that pattern.

- Identify work that draws heavily on your energy and attention.
- Explore how strengths and assumptions can contribute to overcommitment.
- Renegotiate ownership, boundaries or expectations around work others can lead.

IN PRACTICE

Colleagues repeatedly escalate decisions you have delegated. Plan a conversation that strengthens their ownership and clarifies when escalation is useful.

TAKEAWAY

A capacity plan with one boundary, habit or responsibility to change and a way to review the effect.

FINAL SESSION

Integration and Celebration

Review the choices you tested, the feedback you received and the habits you want to sustain. Share your learning with the cohort and refine your leadership blueprint and 90-day agenda. Consider how you want your contribution to be experienced and remembered.

BETWEEN SESSIONS

Peer Group Support and Tripartites

Three one-hour peer pods provide a forum to test thinking and review action. The tripartite preparation check-in helps you prepare for a one-hour conversation with your line manager and a facilitator about development, application and support.

Your 90-day action plan identifies what you intend to do next, whose involvement matters and how you will recognise progress – a practical basis for follow-up with your sponsor.

Each mastery module, and the integration session, lasts three hours. If you are self-funded or cannot involve a line manager, discuss a suitable alternative during the fit call.

YOUR NEXT CHAPTER

Your Next Chapter Starts with Understanding Your Leadership DNA.

You have already achieved a great deal. Her Leadership DNA is about taking the time to understand what makes you distinctive as a leader, recognising the impact you have and becoming even more intentional about the contribution you want to make.

Over five months, you will work alongside experienced facilitators and a group of senior women who understand the realities of leadership. You will challenge your thinking, explore new approaches, work through real situations and build practical strategies that you can take straight back into your organisation.

The programme is not simply about gaining knowledge or attending sessions. It is about making tangible changes to how you lead, influence, engage others and deliver results.

This is not about becoming someone different. It is about recognising your strengths, owning your leadership and making your influence count.

Invest in Yourself. Strengthen Your Impact. Shape What Comes Next.

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

Your Questions Answered

About the Programme

01 Who Is Her Leadership DNA Designed For?

Her Leadership DNA is designed for experienced, senior women leaders whose influence extends across teams, functions or markets. It is for women who want to strengthen their leadership impact, navigate complexity and take their contribution to the next level.

02 Am I Experienced Enough to Participate?

The programme is designed for established leaders with significant professional experience and leadership responsibilities. You don't need to have all the answers or be in the most senior position. What matters is your experience, your willingness to reflect and your appetite to develop further. Our facilitator fit conversation will help establish whether it's right for you.

03 How Is This Programme Different from Other Leadership Programmes?

Her Leadership DNA combines personal leadership development with practical workplace application. Using CDNA's 5H Framework (Head, Heart, Hunch, Hands and Habits), you'll explore not just what you do as a leader, but how your thinking, values, strengths and behaviours influence your impact. You'll work on real challenges, supported by experienced facilitators and a peer group of senior women.

04 What's in It for Me?

You'll gain greater self-awareness, confidence and clarity about your leadership strengths and contribution. You'll develop practical skills in influencing, stakeholder relationships, difficult conversations and leading through complexity. You'll also create a personal leadership blueprint and 90-day action plan to support your next chapter.

05 What's in It for My Organisation?

Your organisation benefits from a leader better equipped to influence across boundaries, build effective relationships, strengthen accountability and navigate organisational challenges. The programme encourages immediate application of learning to real business priorities, helping translate personal development into improved leadership effectiveness.

06 Why Should My Organisation Invest in Me?

Investing in your development is an investment in the contribution you can make to the organisation. The programme will help you build on your existing strengths, extend your influence and become more effective in addressing the challenges that matter to the business. Your development goals and 90-day action plan also provide a practical way to demonstrate progress and value.

07 What If I'm Between Roles or My Organisation Is Changing?

Periods of transition can be an ideal time to invest in yourself. The programme helps you clarify your leadership identity, recognise your distinctive strengths and articulate the value you bring, regardless of your current role or organisation. It can also help you prepare confidently for your next career chapter.

08 I Haven't Got Time – How Much Commitment Is Required?

We recognise that senior leaders have demanding schedules. The programme runs over five months, with 36 scheduled live hours in total, including facilitated sessions, peer pods and individual development activities. There is additional preparation and workplace application. The investment is designed to be manageable while giving you meaningful time to develop and practise new approaches.

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

Your Questions Answered

Time, Participation and Applying

09 How Much Work Is Involved Between Sessions?

There is no expectation of extensive academic study or lengthy assignments. Between sessions, you'll undertake some preparation, reflect on your leadership and apply new approaches to real workplace situations. You'll also participate in three one-hour peer pods. The emphasis is on practical application rather than additional theory.

10 Who Will I Be Learning Alongside?

You'll join an intimate cohort of 10–24 experienced women leaders, bringing together different industries, organisations, cultures and perspectives. This creates a valuable opportunity to share experiences, challenge thinking, learn from one another and build relationships with women who understand the realities of senior leadership.

11 Will My Line Manager Be Involved?

Yes, the programme includes a one-hour tripartite conversation involving you, your line manager and a facilitator. This is an opportunity to align your development goals with workplace priorities and discuss the support that will help you apply your learning. If you're self-funded or unable to involve your line manager, an alternative can be discussed during your fit conversation.

12 How Will Confidentiality Be Protected?

Creating a trusted and psychologically safe environment is central to the programme. Participants are expected to respect the confidentiality of personal experiences and workplace challenges shared within the group. Your conversations with peers should remain within the cohort. We will also clarify the boundaries of confidentiality and what information, if any, is shared through the tripartite process.

13 What Happens If I Miss a Session?

We expect participants to attend all sessions live, with a minimum attendance expectation of 95%. Consistent attendance is important because the programme builds progressively and relies on active participation and peer relationships. We understand that unforeseen circumstances can arise, so please speak to us as soon as possible if you anticipate an absence. Sessions should not be assumed to be available as recordings or catch-up alternatives.

14 What If I Need to Pause or My Circumstances Change?

We understand that circumstances can change, professionally or personally. If something affects your ability to continue, please speak to us as early as possible. We'll discuss your situation individually and explore what options may be available, taking into account programme commitments and the agreed booking terms.

15 Can I Attend If I'm Self-Funding?

Absolutely. You can join the programme as an individual or with organisational sponsorship. The programme is open to women who recognise the value of investing in their own leadership development. If you're self-funding, we can also discuss an appropriate alternative to the line-manager involvement during your facilitator conversation.

16 How Do I Apply and What Happens Next?

Simply complete the application form, telling us about your current role, leadership challenges and what you'd like to achieve. Following your application, you'll have a 20-minute conversation with one of our experienced facilitators to explore your goals, answer questions and assess whether the programme is the right fit. If accepted, we'll send your booking form and payment details, followed by your welcome information, session invitations and prework.
